005-00 War and Revolution 战争与革命

Table of Contents

1. War and Revolution 战争与革命

---

1. War and Revolution 战争与革命

In July 1937, Japan launched a full-scale invasion of China.
Despite resistance 抵抗；反抗 from Nationalist Chinese troops under Generalissimo (尤指有军政二权的)三军总司令；最高统帅 Chiang Kai-shek, Japanese troops soon occupied most of China’s major cities.

In October 1938, Chiang retreated to Chongqing, in Sichuan province, which became the capital of Free China.

Some thirty thousand Japanese troops landed (v.) that same month at Daya (Bias) Bay, only thirty miles northeast of Hong Kong, taking the city of Canton within two weeks.

Almost overnight, Hong Kong assumed 承担,就职;呈现；取得 a new importance for China.
The colony became a haven 避难所；安全港 for refugees (n.) fleeing the Japanese invasion —some five hundred thousand came /in 1938 alone —and a crucial source of arms 武器来源 for the Chinese war effort 战争努力.

Until the Japanese took Canton in October 1938, 主 more than fifty tons of munitions 军需品,军火；弹药 and supplies (n.) purchased overseas 谓 entered (v.) China per month via 经由；通过 the Kowloon-Canton Railway.

Even after the fall 陷落；失守 of Canton, strategic materials 战略物资 were smuggled into China over land 由陆路 and by boat.

Many Chinese newspapers moved to Hong Kong, while 主 local organizations such as the Chinese Merchants’ Relief 救济；援助 Association, the Chinese Women’s Relief Association, and the Hong Kong Chinese Women’s Club 谓 helped raise 筹集；募集 money for the war effort.

> Example 1. 案例
>
> In July 1937, Japan launched a full-scale invasion of China.
> Despite resistance from Nationalist Chinese troops under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Japanese troops soon occupied most of China’s major cities.
> In October 1938, Chiang retreated to Chongqing, in Sichuan province, which became the capital of Free China.

Some thirty thousand Japanese troops landed that same month at Daya (Bias) Bay, only thirty miles northeast of Hong Kong, taking the city of Canton within two weeks.
Almost overnight, Hong Kong assumed a new importance for China.
The colony became a haven for refugees fleeing the Japanese invasion—some five hundred thousand came in 1938 alone—and a crucial source of arms for the Chinese war effort.
Until the Japanese took Canton in October 1938, more than fifty tons of munitions and supplies purchased overseas entered China per month via the Kowloon-Canton Railway.
Even after the fall of Canton, strategic materials were smuggled into China over land and by boat.
Many Chinese newspapers moved to Hong Kong, while local organizations such as the Chinese Merchants' Relief Association, the Chinese Women's Relief Association, and the Hong Kong Chinese Women's Club helped raise money for the war effort.

1937年7月，日本全面入侵中国。尽管蒋介石领导的国民党军队进行了顽强抵抗，日军很快占领了中国的大部分主要城市。1938年10月，蒋介石退守四川重庆，重庆成为自由中国的首都。同月，约三万日军在距离香港东北仅30英里的大亚湾登陆，并在两周内攻占了广州。几乎一夜之间，香港对中国的重要性与日俱增。这片殖民地成为逃离日军入侵的难民的避难所——仅1938年一年就有约50万人涌入——同时也成为中国战争的重要武器来源地。在1938年10月日军攻占广州之前，每月有超过50吨的海外采购的军火和物资经由九广铁路运入中国。即使在广州陷落后，战略物资仍然通过陆路和水路走私进入中国。许多中文报纸迁往香港，而中国商人救济会、中国妇女救济会和香港中国妇女俱乐部等当地组织也帮助筹集资金用于战争。

The Sino-Japanese War had a dramatic 急剧的；巨大的；令人吃惊的 effect on Hong Kong's economy.

After the Japanese blockaded 对……实行封锁；阻塞 Shanghai and other Chinese ports, by early 1938 /half of China's foreign trade was diverted 使转向；使改道 through Hong Kong.

Banks such as the Bank of China and the Communications 信息；通讯 Bank 交通银行 moved (v.) their headquarters 总部；总公司 to Hong Kong, making it the exchange 兑换，汇兑 banking center 外汇银行中心 for all of China.

中国银行、交通银行等银行将总部迁至香港，使其成为全中国的汇兑银行中心。

Example 2. 案例
the Communications Bank

The massive 大量的；巨大的 influx of refugees from China 谓 exacerbated 使恶化；使加剧 the colony's already crowded (a.) housing conditions /and strained (v.)使紧张；使不堪承受；耗尽 its resources, but it also created a boom in land sales 土地买卖 that boosted (v.) government revenues 财政收入；税收收入.

Chinese entrepreneurs not only brought (v.) capital 资本；资金 but also transplanted (v.) 迁移；移种；使迁移 entire factories, some of which produced (v.) military 军事的；军用的 equipment for the Chinese war effort.

This helped build (v.) an industrial base that would greatly assist (v.) Hong Kong’s economic recovery after the war.

Example 3. 案例

The Sino-Japanese War had a dramatic effect on Hong Kong’s economy.
After the Japanese blockaded Shanghai and other Chinese ports, by early 1938 half of China’s foreign trade was diverted through Hong Kong.
Banks such as the Bank of China and the Communications Bank moved their headquarters to Hong Kong, making it the exchange banking center for all of China.
The massive influx of refugees from China exacerbated the colony’s already crowded housing conditions and strained its resources, but it also created a boom in land sales that boosted government revenues.
Chinese entrepreneurs not only brought capital but also transplanted entire factories, some of which produced military equipment for the Chinese war effort.
This helped build an industrial base that would greatly assist Hong Kong’s economic recovery after the war.

抗日战争对香港经济产生了巨大影响。日军封锁上海及其他中国港口后，到1938年初，中国一半的对外贸易都不得不经由香港进行。中国银行、交通银行等银行纷纷将总部迁至香港，使香港成为全中国的金融中心。大量来自中国的难民涌入加剧了香港本已拥挤的住房状况，也使香港的资源捉襟见肘，但同时也带动了土地买卖的繁荣，增加了政府收入。中国企业家不仅带来了资金，还移植了整座工厂，其中一些工厂生产军需品支援中国的战争。这为香港战后经济复苏奠定了坚实的工业基础。

The Hong Kong government’s policy toward the war in China 谓 was both shaped and constrained 限制；约束；束缚 by the concerns (n.) of British defense policy.

Although the British military leadership had expected another world war and a conflict with Japan, it was eager to prevent (v.) any action against Japan that might drive (v.)驱动；推动 Germany and Italy toward war in Europe.

The colonial government could not afford to provoke 激怒；挑衅；煽动 the Japanese government, especially when Hong Kong was declared a neutral zone 中立区 in September 1938.

(The colonial government had been embarrassed in 1931 after 主 the Japanese invasion of Manchuria 谓 provoked 激起；挑衅 a rash 一连串；大量 of riots /in which angry crowds looted (v.)抢劫；劫掠 Japanese shops, attacked Japanese residents, and murdered a Japanese family.
The hostilities 敌意；敌对行动 continued (v.) for five days, and the army had to be called in to help (v.) the police keep order.)

Thus, the Hong Kong government rejected the Chinese government’s pleas 恳求；请求 to arm (v.)武装；装备 local Chinese for helping the war effort on the mainland.

Similarly, the colonial government turned down 拒绝 requests by the Chinese unofficial members of the Legislative Council to send relief 救济；援助 money to China.

The Hong Kong Red Cross Society was forbidden 禁止；不准；不许 to send workers into the war zone 战区；交战地带.

Example 4. 案例

The Hong Kong government’s policy toward the war in China was both shaped and constrained by the concerns of British defense policy.
Although the British military leadership had expected another world war and a conflict with Japan, it was eager to prevent any action against Japan that might drive Germany and Italy toward war in Europe.
The colonial government could not afford to provoke the Japanese government, especially when Hong Kong was declared a neutral zone in September 1938.
(The colonial government had been embarrassed in 1931 after the Japanese invasion of Manchuria provoked a rash of riots in which angry crowds looted Japanese shops, attacked Japanese residents, and murdered a Japanese family.
The hostilities continued for five days, and the army had to be called in to help the police keep order.) Thus, the Hong Kong government rejected the Chinese government’s pleas to arm local Chinese for helping the war effort on the mainland.
Similarly, the colonial government turned down requests by the Chinese unofficial members of the Legislative Council to send relief money to China.
The Hong Kong Red Cross Society was forbidden to send workers into the war zone.

香港政府对中国战争的政策既受到英国国防政策的影响，也受到其制约。尽管英国军方领导层预料到会再次爆发世界大战，并与日本发生冲突，但他们急于阻止任何可能将德国和意大利拖入欧洲战争的针对日本的行动。殖民政府无法承受激怒日本政府的后果，尤其是在1938年9月香港被宣布为中立区之后。（1931年，日本入侵满洲引发了一系列骚乱，愤怒的民众抢劫日本商店，袭击日本居民，并杀害了一个日本家庭，这令殖民政府颜面尽失。骚乱持续了五天，最终不得不调动军队协助警方维持秩序。）因此，香港政府拒绝了中国政府要求武装本地华人以支援大陆战争的请求。同样，殖民政府也拒绝了立法会中非官方议员提出的向中国提供救济金的请求。香港红十字会被禁止向战区派遣工作人员。

Yet the colonial government sympathized (v.) with China /and was reluctant to alienate (v.)使疏远；使不友好 its Chinese subjects 国民；臣民 by clamping 夹住；紧压；固定住 down 严厉打击,压制；镇压 on activities 后定说明 supporting the Chinese resistance.

Example 5. 案例
clamp

英汉互译

AI模型 标准 高级 AI 助手

clamp

英 /klæmp/ 美 /klæmp/ 全球发音

简明 牛津 新牛津 韦氏 柯林斯 例句

v. n.

clamp /klæmp/

1. ~ A to B | ~ A and B (together) to hold sth tightly, or fasten two things together, with a clamp (用夹具) 夹紧，夹住，固定

   [VN]

   - Clamp one end of the plank to the edge of the table.把厚木板的一端用夹具固定在桌子的边上。
   - Clamp the two halves together until the glue dries.用夹具把两半物品夹紧，待胶干后再松开。

   [alsoVN-ADJ]

2. [+ adv./prep.] to hold or fasten sth very tightly so that it does not move; to be held tightly紧紧抓住；紧夹住；被抓住；被夹紧

   [VN]

   - He had a cigar clamped between his teeth.他嘴里叼着一根雪茄。
   - She clamped a pair of headphones over her ears.她把一副耳机戴在两边耳朵上。
   - I clamped a hand on his shoulder.我用一只手紧紧抓住他的肩膀。

   [V]

   - Her lips clamped tightly together.她的双唇紧闭。

3. [VN] [often passive] (BrE) to fix a clamp to a car's wheel so that the car cannot be driven away用夹锁锁住 (车)

PHRASAL VERBS 短语动词

1. ˌclamp ˈdown (on sb/sth)

   to take strict action in order to prevent sth, especially crime严厉打击 (犯罪等)

   - a campaign by police to clamp down on street crime警方严厉打击街头犯罪的运动

   —related nounclampdown

2. ˈclamp sth on sb

   (especially NAmE) to force sb to accept sth such as a restriction or law强制...接受 (限制或法律等)

   - The army clamped a curfew on the city.军队对这座城市实行了宵禁。

以上来源于: 牛津词典

CET6 | IELTS

网络释义 专业释义 英英释义

It thus turned a blind eye to 对……视而不见 efforts by both the Chinese Nationalists 民族主义者；国民党人 and the Communists 共产主义者；共产党人 to funnel (v.)输送；汇集;通过漏斗，穿过狭窄通道 resources and draw (v.) international support for China’s war effort.

For the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), Hong Kong was a link to the outside world.

In January 1938, the colonial government allowed the CCP to establish a local office (disguised 伪装；掩饰 as a tea company in order not to violate British neutrality 中立 laws) of the Eighth Route Army 八路军, which raised donations 捐赠；捐款 of medicine and money from overseas Chinese.

The CCP also opened the Hong Kong News College 新闻传播学院 and the China News Agency 新闻社 to train (v.) reporters and promote (v.) the Chinese war effort.

The Hong Kong branch of the Chinese National Anti-Japanese Literary Association 文学社 and the Defend China League 联盟，同盟, headed by Song Qingling, widow 遗孀 of Sun Yat-sen, drummed up 拉动，争取；鼓动 support for the Chinese cause 事业；目标.

"中国全国抗日文艺协会"香港分会, 以及由孙中山先生的遗孀宋庆龄领导的"保卫中国同盟"，为中国的事业争取支持。

Chiang Kai-shek’s Nationalist party, the Kuomintang, also had a strong presence 存在；影响力 in Hong Kong, where it published newspapers and continued its propaganda war.

Wang Jingwei and his faction 派系；派别, who later collaborated (v.) with the Japanese from Nanjing, broadcast (v.)散布，传播（信息等） their own propaganda through the South China Daily 南华日报.

Example 6. 案例

Yet the colonial government sympathized with China and was reluctant to alienate its Chinese subjects by clamping down on activities supporting the Chinese resistance.
It thus turned a blind eye to efforts by both the Chinese Nationalists and the Communists to funnel resources and draw international support for China’s war effort.
For the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), Hong Kong was a link to the outside world.
In January 1938, the colonial government allowed the CCP to establish a local office (disguised as a tea company in order not to violate British neutrality laws) of the Eighth Route Army, which raised donations of medicine and money from overseas Chinese.
The CCP also opened the Hong Kong News College and the China News Agency to train reporters and promote the Chinese war effort.
The Hong Kong branch of the Chinese National Anti-Japanese Literary Association and the Defend China League, headed by Song Qingling, widow of Sun Yat-sen, drummed up support for the Chinese cause.
Chiang Kai-shek’s Nationalist party, the Kuomintang, also had a strong presence in Hong Kong, where it published newspapers and continued its propaganda war.
Wang Jingwei and his faction, who later collaborated with the Japanese from Nanjing, broadcast their own propaganda through the South China Daily.

然而，殖民政府同情中国，不愿因镇压支持中国抗日活动而疏远其华人臣民。因此，它对国民党和共产党为中国抗战争取资源和国际社会支持的努力视而不见。对中国共产党而言，香港是其与外界联系的桥梁。1938 年 1 月，殖民政府允许中共在香港设立八路军办事处（为不违反英国中立法，该办事处伪装成一家茶叶公司），负责向海外华人募集药品和资金。中共还开办了香港新闻学院和

中国新闻社，以培训记者并宣传中国抗日事业。由孙中山先生遗孀宋庆龄领导的中国抗日文人会香港分会和保卫中国同盟也积极为中国事业奔走呼吁。蒋介石的国民党在香港也拥有强大的影响力，它在那里出版报纸并继续进行宣传战。汪精卫及其派系后来与南京的日本人合作，通过 《南华日报》传播他们的宣传。