005-04 WARTIME PLANNING AND THE RACE TO RECOVER HONG KONG 战时计划与香港的收复竞赛

Table of Contents

1. WARTIME PLANNING /AND THE RACE TO RECOVER (v.) HONG KONG 战时计划与

---

1. WARTIME PLANNING /AND THE RACE TO RECOVER (v.) HONG KONG 战时计划与香港的收复竞赛

British planning (n.) for postwar 战后的 Hong Kong 谓 began almost immediately after the fall to Japan, which, compounded 使加重；使恶化 by the loss of Singapore and Malaya, was a terrible blow 打击 to British morale 士气；斗志.

As the Colonial Office began to reassess 重新评估 the British failure to defend Hong Kong, one of the conclusions was that /the British should have relied more on local Chinese /and accepted (v.) help from Chiang Kai-shek’s Nationalist forces.

Some wartime planners argued that /the invasion might even be a chance for the British to start (v.) afresh (adv.)重新；再度 in Hong Kong after the war /by building a better sense of community 社群意识 between the British and the Chinese, including by opening higher-level government positions to local Chinese.

They were especially eager (a.) to prevent the type of anticolonial nationalism 民族主义 that had erupted in India and would eventually lead to independence in 1947.

Example 1. 案例

British planning for postwar Hong Kong began almost immediately after the fall to Japan, which, compounded by the loss of Singapore and Malaya, was a terrible blow to British morale.
As the Colonial Office began to reassess the British failure to defend Hong Kong, one of the conclusions was that the British should have relied more on local Chinese and accepted help from Chiang Kai-shek’s Nationalist forces.
Some wartime planners argued that the invasion might even be a chance for the British to start afresh in Hong Kong after the war by building a better sense of community between the British and the Chinese, including by opening higher-level government positions to local Chinese.
They were especially eager to prevent the type of anticolonial nationalism that had erupted in India and would eventually lead to independence in 1947.

英国战后对香港的规划几乎在香港沦陷后立即启动。新加坡和马来亚的失守，加上香港的沦陷，对英国士气造成了沉重打击。随着殖民地事务部开始重新评估英国在保卫香港方面的失败，其中一个

结论是，英国本应更多地依靠当地华人，并接受蒋介石国民党军队的援助。一些战时规划者认为，入侵香港或许是英国战后在香港重建的契机，可以通过加强英籍华人之间的社群意识，包括向当地华人开放高级政府职位，来促进香港的重建。他们尤其渴望阻止像印度那样爆发的反殖民民族主义浪潮，这种浪潮最终导致了1947年的独立。

The British plans for recovering (v.) Hong Kong, however, faced (v.) opposition 反对；反抗 from both China and the United States.

With help from American president Franklin Delano Roosevelt (whose grandfather had been a partner 合伙人；伙伴 in the American firm of Russell /and whose mother had once lived in Hong Kong), in January 1942 Chiang Kai-shek became the supreme (a.)最高的；至高无上的 allied 同盟的；联合的 commander 指挥官；司令官 of the China-Burma-India Theater 战区；战场,戏院.

Chiang hoped to use (v.) the war to recover 收复；恢复 Hong Kong and to end the embarrassing unequal treaties.

Supported by the United States, in mid-1942 Chiang’s Nationalists 国民党；民族主义者 approached 接近,与…接洽；向…提议 Britain to give up Hong Kong, or at least the New Territories.

In late 1942, Sino-British 中英的 negotiations began (v.) for abolishing extraterritoriality 治外法权；领事裁判权 in China and revising (v.)修订；修改 the status of the New Territories after the war.

At the Cairo Conference 开罗会议 of November 1943, Roosevelt promised to help Chiang recover (v.) Hong Kong /if he agreed to help the Chinese Communists fight (v.) the Japanese.

Example 2. 案例

The British plans for recovering Hong Kong, however, faced opposition from both China and the United States.
With help from American president Franklin Delano Roosevelt (whose grandfather had been a partner in the American firm of Russell and whose mother had once lived in Hong Kong), in January 1942 Chiang Kai-shek became the supreme allied commander of the China-Burma-India Theater.
Chiang hoped to use the war to recover Hong Kong and to end the embarrassing unequal treaties.
Supported by the United States, in mid-1942 Chiang’s Nationalists approached Britain to give up Hong Kong, or at least the New Territories.
In late 1942, Sino-British negotiations began for abolishing extraterritoriality in China and revising the status of the New Territories after the war.
At the Cairo Conference of November 1943, Roosevelt promised to help Chiang recover Hong Kong if he agreed to help the Chinese Communists fight the Japanese.

然而，英国收复香港的计划遭到了中国和美国的反对。在美国总统富兰克林·德拉诺·罗斯福（其祖父曾是美国罗素公司的合伙人，其母也曾在香港居住）的帮助下，蒋介石于1942年1月成为中缅印战区盟军最高统帅。蒋介石希望利用这场战争收复香港，并废除那些令中英难堪的不平等条约。在美国的支持下，蒋介石的国民党于1942年中期向英国施压，要求其放弃香港，或至少放弃新界。

1942年末，中英双方开始就废除中国治外法权和战后修订新界地位进行谈判。在1943年11月的开罗会议上，罗斯福承诺，如果蒋介石同意帮助中国共产党抗击日本，美国将帮助蒋介石收复香港。

Even while wartime planners 规划者；策划者 in Britain were committed to 致力于 restoring (v.)恢复 Hong Kong to British rule after the war, they also realized that 主 the Chinese Nationalists' 中国国民党的 demands 谓 would have to be taken seriously /and that 主 conditions in postwar Hong Kong 谓 would have to be different.

Although the Nationalists suddenly aborted 中止；放弃 their campaign to recover (v.) the New Territories —content 满足的 for the time being 暂时地，目前 with the agreement that China would reserve (v.)保留 the right to raise 提出 the issue at a later time — some British officials believed that /Hong Kong might have to be surrendered 交出；放弃 for Britain to focus on its other possessions 属地；领地, especially India and Egypt.

Realizing that /many American officials supported (v.) China, some British officials even suggested (v.) giving up Hong Kong before the United States applied (v.) pressure on Britain to do so.

In mid-1942, the Colonial Office conceded 承认；让步 that /Hong Kong might have to be surrendered after the war.

Even in late 1945, George Kitson, head of the China Department at the Foreign Office, suggested that /Britain return Hong Kong for both symbolic 象征的 and practical 实际的；实用的 purposes：as a token 象征；表示 of gratitude 感激；感谢 for China's help in defeating (v.) Japan, as a gesture of friendship in a new postwar world, as proof (n.) that British colonialism was entering a new phase, and as a preemptive (a.)先发制人的；预防性的 move to prevent (v.) possible confrontation 对抗；冲突 with China over the region.

即使在1945年末，英国外交部中国司司长乔治·基特森, 仍建议英国出于象征意义和实际目的, 归还香港：以此作为对中国协助击败日本的感谢之举，作为在战后新世界中表达友好的姿态，作为英国殖民主义正进入新阶段的证明，以及作为一种先发制人的举措，以防止在该地区与中国发生可能的对抗。

Example 3. 案例

Even while wartime planners in Britain were committed to restoring Hong Kong to British rule after the war, they also realized that the Chinese Nationalists' demands would have to be taken seriously and that conditions in postwar Hong Kong would have to be different.
Although the Nationalists suddenly aborted their campaign to recover the New Territories —content for the time being with the agreement that China would reserve the right to raise the issue at a later time—some British officials believed that Hong Kong might have to be surrendered for Britain to focus on its other possessions, especially India and Egypt.
Realizing that many American officials supported China, some British officials even suggested giving up Hong Kong before the United States applied pressure on Britain to do so.
In mid-1942, the Colonial Office conceded that Hong Kong might have to be surrendered after the war.
Even in late 1945, George Kitson, head of the China Department at the Foreign Office, suggested that Britain return Hong Kong for both symbolic and practical purposes: as a token of gratitude for China's help in defeating Japan, as a gesture of friendship in a new postwar world, as proof that British colonialism was entering a new phase, and as a preemptive move to prevent possible confrontation with China over the region.

尽管英国战时规划者致力于战后将香港归还英国统治，但他们也意识到必须认真对待中国国民党的要求，战后香港的状况必须有所不同。虽然国民党突然中止了收复新界的行动——暂时满足于中国保留日后提出该问题的权利——但一些英国官员认为，为了让英国集中精力发展其他殖民地，特别是印度和埃及，香港可能不得不被割让。由于意识到许多美国官员支持中国，一些英国官员甚至建议在美国向英国施压之前就放弃香港。1942年年中，殖民地事务部承认，战后香港可能不得不被割让。即使到了 1945 年末，外交部中国司司长乔治·基特森仍然建议英国归还香港，这既有象征意义，也有实际意义：作为对中国在击败日本方面所提供帮助的感激之情，作为战后新世界中友谊的姿态，作为英国殖民主义进入新阶段的证明，以及作为防止与中国在该地区发生可能冲突的先发制人措施。

As the war turned against Japan’s favor, however, by early 1943 the Colonial Office resolved (v.)决心；决定 to retain Hong Kong after the war.

The Colonial Office became particularly optimistic 乐观的 in February 1944 when Li Shu-fan, a prominent Chinese surgeon 外科医生 who had made his way 前往；抵达 to London, assured the Colonial Office and the Foreign Office that /主 most members of the Chinese upper classes 谓 would prefer (v.) British rule to Chinese rule after the war.

Example 4. 案例

The prepositions “prefer x to y” and “prefer x over y” are considered to be correct in the English language. However, the two have different appropriate uses. As for “prefer x than y”, this is only correct if the term “rather” is added, making it “prefer x rather than y”.

英语中，介词搭配“prefer x to y”和“prefer x over y”被认为是正确的。不过，这两种搭配有不同的适用场景。至于“prefer x than y”，只有加上“rather”，使其变成“prefer x rather than y”时才是正确的。

一般来说，“prefer to”被认为是英语中最合适的介词搭配。这是因为当一个句子旨在比较两个方面、观点等时，这两个事物或因素中的第二个通常由“to”引出。

- I prefer coffee to tea. 比起茶，我更喜欢咖啡
- I prefer drinking coffee to drinking tea.
- I prefer driving in my own vehicle to flying in a plane, despite the safety statistics.

虽然“prefer to”在使用中可能更常见，但使用“prefer over”也被认为是正确的，并且在适当的语境中适用。当短语或句子中有两个明确的选择时，我们会使用“prefer over”——在这两个选择中，我们会选择其中一个而不是另一个。

- I prefer spending to with my grandparents over my parents.
- I prefer using pencils over pens to write.
- I would prefer to keep sleeping, rather than having to get ready to go to school. 我宁愿继续睡觉，也不愿准备去上学。

That summer, the Hong Kong Planning Unit 规划小组 was established under Frank Smith, the former colonial secretary.

After 1944 /the unit was led by David MacDougall, a Hong Kong cadet (n.)初级官员；见习官员;警官（或军官）学员；警官（或军官）候补生 who had escaped during the Japanese occupation.

Example 5. 案例
cadet

→ 来自词根cap, 头。字母p脱落，插入字母d. 即小头领，未来的领导者。

英 /kə'det/ 美 /kə'det/ 全球发音

简明 牛津 新牛津 韦氏 柯林斯 例句 百科

cadet n. /kə'det/

a young person who is training to become an officer in the police or armed forces警官（或军官）学员；警官（或军官）候补生

By mid-1945, Winston Churchill realized that Chiang Kai-shek could not try to recover 收复；收回 Hong Kong without support from the United States, which now considered 主 the continuation (n.)持续；延续 of the British Empire 宾补 vital (a.)至关重要的；必不可少的 to its own interests in the postwar world.

到1945年中期，温斯顿·丘吉尔意识到，蒋介石若没有美国的支持，就无法尝试收复香港，而当时美国认为, 大英帝国的存续, 对其自身在战后世界的利益至关重要。

As victory became imminent (a.)即将发生的；临近的, in the summer of 1945 /主 the Hong Kong Planning Unit and the China Association, a powerful lobby 游说团体；活动集团 representing 代表 British business interests in China, 谓 began to consider (v.) various 各种各样的 proposals 提议；建议 for constitutional 宪法的；体制的 reform, 独立主格 among them giving a greater role to local Chinese 其中包括赋予当地华人更大的参与权.

Example 6. 案例
among them giving a greater role to local Chinese

► DeepSeek:

Header 1	Header 2
	• among them：意为“在这些（提议）中”。这里的 them 指代前面的 various proposals for constitutional reform（各种宪政改革提议）。 • giving a greater role to local Chinese：这是一个"动名词"短语，作介词 among 的宾语。其核心结构是 give sth. to sb.（将某物给予某人），这里的意思是“给予本地华人更大的角色/权力”。 整个短语的字面意思是：“在这些（提议）中，（有）给予本地华人更大角色（的提议）。” 这个结构是独立主格的一种，在语法上独立于主句，用逗号隔开，对主句信息进行补充、列举或举例。它相当于一个简化的非限制性定语从句：

Header 1	Header 2
	...various proposals for constitutional reform, among which was giving a greater role to local Chinese. .....各种宪政改革提议，其中包括给予本地华人更大角色（的提议）。
我又问: among them giving a greater role to local Chinese 看上去好像缺乏主语?	它并非一个完整的句子，而是一个附加说明成分。 这个结构叫 “介词 + 复合宾语” 或 “with/among 的复合结构” 的变体。 • 它的完整逻辑是： ...various proposals ..., among them being the proposal of giving a greater role... • 在实际使用中，being 经常被省略，从而形成了您看到的简洁结构： ...various proposals ..., among them (being) giving a greater role... 这里的 them 是介词 among 的宾语，同时它在逻辑上也是后面动名词短语 giving... 的隐含主语。这个“主语-动作”的关系是存在的，只是被高度浓缩了。 主句（完整句子）：A began to consider B.(A开始考虑B。) 附加成分（非句子，作补充）：among them giving...(其中就包括给予...)

Churchill now declared that Hong Kong would be removed from the British Empire “over my dead body 从我的尸体上跨过去.”

Example 7. 案例
我问: would be removed from 不是将要移出么? 看上去不像反对香港脱离英国呀?

► DeepSeek:

您的理解——“would be removed” 字面意思是“将要被移出”——是完全正确的。但在这个具体语境中，“would”并不表示单纯的将来，而是表示“在某种假设条件下（这个条件就是丘吉尔死了）会发生的事情”，而丘吉尔用“over my dead body”恰恰是为了彻底否定这个假设条件存在的可能性。

“would”在这里表示“在特定假设条件下会发生的结果”。 丘吉尔正是通过设立一个绝不可能发生的条件（他死了），来从根本上否定结果（香港被移出）的可能性。

与其他情态动词的对比:

Header 1	Header 2
用 will be removed	• Hong Kong will be removed...（香港将会被移出。） 这是陈述一个确定的、不可避免的未来事实。这显然是丘吉尔坚决反对的，他不会这么说。
用 shall be removed	• Hong Kong shall be removed...（香港必须/必将被移出。） 这是表达一种强烈的命令或决心。这更是在说反话，变成他主动要求移出了。
用 would be removed	• Hong Kong would be removed...（香港（只有在我死后）才可能被移出。）

Header 1	Header 2
	这是表达一个在虚拟条件下才可能发生的事情。丘吉尔用“would”把“香港被移出”这件事推入了一个纯粹假设的、他认为绝不会成真的领域，从而彻底否定了它在现实中发生的可能性。

Example 8. 案例

As the war turned against Japan’ s favor, however, by early 1943 the Colonial Office resolved to retain Hong Kong after the war.
The Colonial Office became particularly optimistic in February 1944 when Li Shu-fan, a prominent Chinese surgeon who had made his way to London, assured the Colonial Office and the Foreign Office that most members of the Chinese upper classes would prefer British rule to Chinese rule after the war.
That summer, the Hong Kong Planning Unit was established under Frank Smith, the former colonial secretary.
After 1944 the unit was led by David MacDougall, a Hong Kong cadet who had escaped during the Japanese occupation.
By mid-1945, Winston Churchill realized that Chiang Kai-shek could not try to recover Hong Kong without support from the United States, which now considered the continuation of the British Empire vital to its own interests in the postwar world.
As victory became imminent, in the summer of 1945 the Hong Kong Planning Unit and the China Association, a powerful lobby representing British business interests in China, began to consider various proposals for constitutional reform, among them giving a greater role to local Chinese.
Churchill now declared that Hong Kong would be removed from the British Empire “over my dead body.”

然而，随着战局对日本不利，到1943年初，英国殖民部决定战后保留香港。1944年2月，一位前往伦敦的著名华人外科医生李树帆向殖民部和外交部保证，战后大多数华人上层阶级成员会更倾向于英国统治而非中国统治，这令殖民部尤为乐观。同年夏天，在原殖民大臣弗兰克·史密斯的领导下，香港规划组成立。1944年后，该组由在日占时期逃脱的香港学员大卫·麦克杜格尔领导。到1945年中期，温斯顿·丘吉尔意识到，蒋介石若没有美国的支持，根本无法收复香港。此时的美国认为，大英帝国的延续对其自身在战后世界的利益至关重要。随着胜利在望，1945年夏天，香港规划组和代表英国在华商业利益的强大游说团体——中国协会开始考虑各种宪政改革方案，其中包括赋予香港本地华人更大的权力。丘吉尔此时宣称，除非我死了，否则香港绝不会脱离大英帝国。

As the British planned for recovering 恢复；重新获得 Hong Kong, 主 the problem of what to do with the old business and professional elite 谓 arose 出现；产生.

The British needed a local support base, but 主 some of the Europeans interned 被拘留的；被软禁的 during the war 谓 had criticized leaders such as Robert Kotewall and Chow Shouson for being too compliant (a.)顺从的；服从的 with the Japanese.

Yet the returning colonial government would have great difficulty finding anyone to replace (v.) these old leaders.

Furthermore, there was the problem of convincing 使相信；说服 the local Chinese population that /Britain, rather than Nationalist China, deserved 应得；值得 to rule (v.) Hong Kong after the war.

This explains (v.) both why 主 the British, who could not afford to lose (v.) the people they had depended on for so long, 谓 decided to keep the old leaders /and why these leaders worked (v.) so hard to restore (v.) British rule.

这既解释了为什么英国人——他们无法承受失去那些长期以来所依赖的人——决定保留旧领导人，也解释了为什么这些领导人会如此努力地恢复英国的统治。

The Colonial Office eventually decided (后发生) that /Chow and Kotewall had been acting (先发生) (v.) in the colony’s best interest.

殖民地办公室最终认定，周和Kotewall 的所作所为, 符合该殖民地的最大利益。

Example 9. 案例

As the British planned for recovering Hong Kong, the problem of what to do with the old business and professional elite arose.
The British needed a local support base, but some of the Europeans interned during the war had criticized leaders such as Robert Kotewall and Chow Shouson for being too compliant with the Japanese.
Yet the returning colonial government would have great difficulty finding anyone to replace these old leaders.
Furthermore, there was the problem of convincing the local Chinese population that Britain, rather than Nationalist China, deserved to rule Hong Kong after the war.
This explains both why the British, who could not afford to lose the people they had depended on for so long, decided to keep the old leaders and why these leaders worked so hard to restore British rule.
The Colonial Office eventually decided that Chow and Kotewall had been acting in the colony’s best interest.

随着英国人筹划收复香港，如何处置原有的商业和专业精英阶层成了一个难题。英国需要一个本地支持基础，但一些在战争期间被拘禁的欧洲人曾批评罗伯特·科特沃尔和周寿祯等领导人对日本人过于顺从。然而，复辟的殖民政府很难找到人来取代这些老领导人。此外，如何说服当地华人相信英国而非国民党统治下的中国才配在战后统治香港，也是一个难题。这既解释了为什么英国人——他们无法承受失去长期以来赖以生存的民众——决定保留这些老领导人，也解释了为什么这些领导人如此努力地维护英国的统治。最终，殖民部认定周寿祯和科特沃尔的行为符合殖民地的最佳利益。

Just as victory against Japan became certain, a more immediate challenge (n.) arose (v.).

Japan surrendered (v.) on August 14, earlier than most British military planners had predicted.

American and Nationalist Chinese troops were making progress 取得进展 in China, getting closer by the day 随着每一天的过去 to Canton.

Knowing that /Roosevelt wanted (v.) Chiang Kai-shek to accept the Japanese surrender as supreme 最高的；至高无上的 commander* 指挥官；司令官 in almost all of the China Theater 战区；战场, the British feared that /Chiang’s troops would try to accept the surrender in Hong Kong.

Although Chiang assured them that /he would not try to retake 重新占领；夺回 Hong Kong after accepting the surrender, the British dispatched 派遣；派出 Rear 后方的；后面的；背面的 Admiral (海军将官；海军上将；舰队司令) 海军少将 Cecil Harcourt from Sydney with a fleet to reach Hong Kong first.

尽管蒋介石向他们保证，接受日本投降后不会试图重新夺回香港，但英国人还是从悉尼派遣了塞西尔·哈考特海军少将, 率领一支舰队，率先抵达香港。

Example 10. 案例

我问: 这里Admiral 已经有海军上将的意思了, 为什么前还有个 Rear ?

► DeepSeek:

在英语海军军衔体系中，Admiral是最高级别的“上将”，而 Rear Admiral是低一级的“少将”。这里的 Rear并非字面意思“后面的”，而是源自海军阵型的历史演变：
历史渊源：在帆船时代，海军舰队通常排成一条长线（Line of Battle）。舰队司令（Admiral）位于中间（Center），副司令（Vice Admiral）位于前面（Vanguard），而 Rear Admiral则负责指挥舰队尾部（Rear）的船只。

现代含义：虽然阵型战术已过时，但 Vice Admiral（中将）和 Rear Admiral（少将）这两个词保留了下来，作为固定的军衔名称。

When Britain and China asked the United States to help them resolve (v.) the matter, Chiang proposed 提议；建议 delegating 授予；委派 surrender authority 权力；权威 to a British official in Hong Kong, but only if Britain agreed not to accept the Japanese surrender /until after Chiang had formally accepted the surrender for the China Theater.

Britain agreed, and on September 16 /Harcourt accepted the Japanese surrender on behalf of 代表 Britain and China in the presence of 当着……的面；在……面前 a Chinese and an American official 官员，高级职员.

Example 11. 案例

Just as victory against Japan became certain, a more immediate challenge arose.
Japan surrendered on August 14, earlier than most British military planners had predicted.
American and Nationalist Chinese troops were making progress in China, getting closer by the day to Canton.
Knowing that Roosevelt wanted Chiang Kai-shek to accept the Japanese surrender as supreme commander in almost all of the China Theater, the British feared that Chiang’s troops would try to accept the surrender in Hong Kong.
Although Chiang assured them that he would not try to retake Hong Kong after accepting the surrender, the British dispatched Rear Admiral Cecil Harcourt from Sydney with a fleet to reach Hong Kong first.
When Britain and China asked the United States to help them resolve the matter, Chiang proposed delegating surrender authority to a British official in Hong Kong, but only if Britain agreed not to accept the Japanese surrender until after Chiang had formally accepted the surrender for the China Theater.
Britain agreed, and on September 16 Harcourt accepted the Japanese surrender on behalf of Britain and China in the presence of a Chinese and an American official.

正当对日胜利已成定局之际，一个更为紧迫的挑战出现了。日本于8月14日投降，比大多数英国军事策划者的预期都要早。美军和国民党军队在中国境内节节推进，日益逼近广州。英国人知道罗斯福希望蒋介石作为几乎整个中国战区的最高统帅接受日本投降，因此担心蒋介石的部队会在香港试图接受投降。尽管蒋介石向他们保证，接受投降后不会试图夺回香港，但英国还是派遣塞西尔·哈考特海军少将率领舰队从悉尼率军前往香港。当英国和中国请求美国协助解决此事时，蒋介石提议将投降权委托给一位驻港的英国官员，但前提是英国同意在蒋介石正式接受中国战区投降之前，不接受日本的投降。英国同意了，9 月 16 日，哈考特在一名中国官员和一名美国官员的见证下，代表英国和中国接受了日本的投降。

This arrangement briefly soured (v.)使恶化；使变得糟糕;（使）变酸 Sino-British relations, but it was as pragmatic (a.)务实的；讲求实际的 as it was symbolic (象征性的；有象征意义 的) 如同它具有象征意义一样.

这种安排一度使中英关系变得紧张，但它既务实又具有象征意义。

Example 12. 案例
as + 形容词 + as + 从句

既…… 又…… / 既 A 又 B，两者程度一样。

本句：as pragmatic as it was symbolic = 既务实，又有象征意义（务实程度 = 象征意义程度）

例:
- This book is as interesting as it is useful. 这本书既有趣又有用。
- The plan is as simple as it is effective. 这个计划既简单又有效。

It also helps explain (v.) why Hong Kong remained a British colony after the war.

Although there were loud calls 呼吁；强烈要求 in China for recovering Hong Kong /and although he had almost sixty thousand troops within three hundred miles of Hong Kong when the Japanese surrendered, Chiang realized that Britain would not give up Hong Kong easily /and that a failure to recover Hong Kong would discredit (v.)使……丢脸,使丧失信誉；使名誉扫地 him in China.

Furthermore, he needed the support of both the United States and Britain to be a major player in the new world order 世界秩序.

Preoccupied (a.) with 全神贯注于；忙于 recovering northern China and keeping Chinese Communist troops from recapturing 收复；夺回 Japanese-held territory 领土；领地, he did not want to provoke 挑衅；激怒 the Communists into entering the race 争夺；竞争 for Hong Kong, especially since their East River Column 纵队；队伍 was closer to Hong Kong than were his own troops.

Example 13. 案例
这里 than were his own troops.用了倒装么? 为什么用倒装?

这里使用了倒装。

正常语序：... than his own troops were (closer to Hong Kong).
倒装语序：... than were his own troops.

在主语较长的情况下，as 引导的方式状语从句要用倒装语序。例如：
- Air is attracted by earth, as is every other substance. 像其他物质一样，空气也受到地球的吸引。
- She is unusually tall, as are both her parents. 她特别高，她的父母也一样。

preoccupied

英 /priˈɒkjupaɪd/ 美 /priˈɑːkjupaɪd/ 全球发音

简明 牛津 韦氏 柯林斯 例句 百科

pre·occu·pied adj. /priˈɒkjupaɪd/

~ (with sth) thinking and/or worrying continuously about sth so that you do not pay attention to other things心事重重；一门心思

- He was too preoccupied with his own thoughts to notice anything wrong.他只顾想着心事，没注意到有什么不对。

Concerned about the postwar order, the United States had now softened (v.)缓和；减弱 its stance（公开表明的）立场；态度 toward colonialism.

Harry Truman, who became president after Roosevelt died in April 1945, was less committed (a.)尽心尽力的，忠诚的;坚定的；致力于的 than his predecessor 前任；前辈 to restoring 恢复；使复原 Hong Kong to Chinese sovereignty 主权；统治权, while 主 General Douglas MacArthur, commander of the Allied forces in the Southwest Pacific, 谓 supported outright 完全地；彻底地 the continuation of the British Empire in East Asia.

Example 14. 案例

outright

英 /ˈaʊtraɪt/ 美 /ˈaʊtraɪt/ 全球发音

简明 牛津 新牛津 韦氏 柯林斯 例句 百科

adj. adv.

out·right /ˈaʊtraɪt/

1. in a direct way and without trying to hide anything公开地；直率地；毫无保留地
   - Why don't you ask him outright if it's true?你为什么不直截了当地问他那是否属实？
   - She couldn't help herself and she laughed outright.她忍不住大笑起来。
2. clearly and completely完全彻底；干净利落
   - Neither candidate won outright.两个候选人谁也没干脆利落地获胜。
   - The group rejects outright any negotiations with the government.这个团体断然拒绝与政府进行任何谈判。
3. not gradually; immediately一下子；骤然间；立即
   - Most of the crash victims were killed outright.飞机坠毁的遇难者大都是立即惨死。
   - We had saved enough money to buy the house outright.我们存了足够的钱，能一次付清款项买下这所房子。

以上来源于: 牛津词典

IELTS | GMAT | SAT

The British realized that they could not prevent Chiang’s troops from recapturing Hong Kong and that the United States, regardless of 不管；不顾 its new attitudes toward colonialism, would not help the British resist (v.) such an attempt.

They also realized that such an arrangement would play out 发生；出现,发展；呈现 better among the Chinese population of Hong Kong, some of whom, proud of China’s new status, thought that this might be a chance to get rid of 摆脱；赶走 the British.

他们还意识到，这样的安排在香港的华人社群中会更容易推行，其中一些人因中国新的地位而感到自豪，认为这或许是摆脱英国人的一个机会。

Example 15. 案例

play out

10. ˌplay sth←→ˈout

when an event is played out, it happens发生；出现

SYN enact

• Their love affair was played out against the backdrop of war.他们在战争的背景下发生恋情。

11. ˌplay yourself/itself ˈout to become weak and no longer useful or important消耗净尽；使精疲力竭

Example 16. 案例

This arrangement briefly soured Sino-British relations, but it was as pragmatic as it was symbolic.
It also helps explain why Hong Kong remained a British colony after the war.
Although there were loud calls in China for recovering Hong Kong and although he had almost sixty thousand troops within three hundred miles of Hong Kong when the Japanese surrendered, Chiang realized that Britain would not give up Hong Kong easily and that a failure to recover Hong Kong would discredit him in China.
Furthermore, he needed the support of both the United States and Britain to be a major player in the new world order.
Preoccupied with recovering northern China and keeping Chinese Communist troops from recapturing Japanese-held territory, he did not want to provoke the Communists into entering the race for Hong Kong, especially since their East River Column was closer to Hong Kong than were his own troops.
Concerned about the postwar order, the United States had now softened its stance toward colonialism.
Harry Truman, who became president after Roosevelt died in April 1945, was less committed than his predecessor to restoring Hong Kong to Chinese sovereignty, while General Douglas MacArthur, commander of the Allied forces in the Southwest Pacific, supported outright the continuation of the British Empire in East Asia.
The British realized that they could not prevent Chiang’s troops from recapturing Hong Kong and that the United States, regardless of its new attitudes toward colonialism, would not help the British resist such an attempt.
They also realized that such an arrangement would play out better among the Chinese population of Hong Kong, some of whom, proud of China’s new status, thought that this might be a chance to get rid of the British.

这一安排一度令中英关系恶化，但其务实性和象征意义并存。这也解释了为何战后香港仍是英国殖民地。尽管中国国内要求收复香港的呼声高涨，而且在日本投降时，蒋介石在香港方圆三百英里内驻扎了近六万兵力，但他深知英国不会轻易放弃香港，而若未能收复香港，将使他在中国声望受损。此外，他需要美国和英国的支持才能在新世界秩序中扮演重要角色。蒋介石当时正忙于收复中国北方，并阻止中国共产党军队重新夺回日占领土，因此他不想激怒共产党，使其卷入香港争夺战，尤其考虑到共产党的东江纵队比他的军队更靠近香港。出于对战后秩序的担忧，美国此时已软化了其对殖民主义的立场。哈里·杜鲁门在罗斯福于1945年4月去世后继任总统，他对恢复香港主权的决心远不及前任。而西南太平洋盟军总司令道格拉斯·麦克阿瑟将军则公开支持大英帝国在东亚的延续。英国人意识到他们无法阻止蒋介石的军队重新夺回香港，而且美国即便对殖民主义的态度有

所转变，也不会帮助英国抵抗这种企图。他们也意识到，这样的安排或许更有利于香港华人，因为一些华人对中国的新地位感到自豪，认为这或许是摆脱英国统治的机会。