He proposed a municipal 市政的 council, of which two-thirds would be elected mainly by Chinese voters, while letting the colonial government retain (v.) control of finance and defense.

Young also called for more localization 地方化 by replacing European government officials with Chinese.

Although Young based his plan on the recent constitutional reforms elsewhere in the empire, he was also drawing on 利用，借鉴 an old lesson that the British had learned from the American Revolution /and applied to their white subjects in Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and South Africa: cultivate (v.)开垦，耕作；栽培，培育 an imperial identity by giving colonial subjects more of a say (n.)发言权，决定权 in government.

Example 1. 案例

The return of Governor Mark Young on May 1, 1946, to the colony that he had surrendered in December 1941 was a symbolic move, designed to emphasize that the Japanese occupation had been only a temporary disruption.

But Young quickly showed that he had no desire to set back the clock.
Instead, he proposed the most radical constitutional reforms in Hong Kong’s history.
Young believed that the Chinese of Hong Kong needed more political representation to increase their desire to remain under British rule.
Convinced that Hong Kong might eventually become a city-state within the British Empire and Commonwealth, Young called for greater Chinese membership in the Legislative and Executive Councils.
He proposed a municipal council, of which two-thirds would be elected mainly by Chinese voters, while letting the colonial government retain control of finance and defense.
Young also called for more localization by replacing European government officials with Chinese.
Although Young based his plan on the recent constitutional reforms elsewhere in the empire, he was also drawing on an old lesson that the British had learned from the American Revolution and applied to their white subjects in Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and South Africa: cultivate an imperial identity by giving colonial subjects more of a say in government.

1946年5月1日，楊慕琦总督重返他于1941年12月交出的殖民地，这一举动具有象征意义，旨在强调日本的占领只是暂时的干扰。但杨明哲很快表明，他无意让历史倒退。相反，他提出了香港历史上最激进的宪政改革。杨明哲认为，香港华人需要更多的政治代表权，以增强他们留在英国统治下的意愿。他坚信香港最终可能成为大英帝国和英联邦内的一个城邦，因此呼吁增加华人在立法会和行政会中的席位。他提议设立一个市政委员会，其中三分之二的席位主要由华人选民选举产生，同时保留殖民地政府对财政和国防的控制权。杨明哲还呼吁通过用华人取代欧洲政府官员来实现更多本土化。尽管杨格的计划是基于帝国其他地区最近的宪政改革，但他同时也借鉴了英国从美国革命中吸取的一个古老教训，并将其应用于他们在澳大利亚、加拿大、新西兰和南非的白人臣民：通过赋予殖民地臣民更多政府发言权来培养帝国认同感。

Although in July 1947 the British government publicly approved the Young plan in principle 原则上, the reforms were doomed 注定的；命中注定的 from the start.

The British government soon sent Alexander Grantham 葛量洪 to replace Young, whom it worried was too closely associated 与……相关联；与……有联系 with the surrender to the Japanese.

Nor, Grantham insisted , were Young’s reforms even necessary.

格兰瑟姆坚持认为，杨的改革甚至没有必要。

Example 3. 案例

否定副词置于句首 → 句子部分倒装.

系动词（倒装）：were
主语：Young’s reforms
表语：even necessary

本句正常语序：Young’s reforms were not even necessary, Grantham insisted.
倒装后：Nor were Young’s reforms even necessary, Grantham insisted.

例：
He didn’t go. Nor did I. 他没去，我也没去。
Never have I seen such a beautiful place. 我从没见过这么美的地方。
Seldom does she eat breakfast. 她很少吃早饭。

Grantham, who enjoyed good relations with the British and Chinese merchants of Hong Kong as well as with prominent militaryand political officials in China, believed that the majority of Hong Kong Chinese preferred (v.) He was less optimistic 乐观的 that the British could do the same /if the Communists 共产党人 took control of China, but he felt certain that /the Communists would not bother 打扰；侵扰 Hong Kong as long as 只要 they were convinced of the colony’s value to them.

Example 4. 案例

Although in July 1947 the British government publicly approved the Young plan in principle, the reforms were doomed from the start.
The British government soon sent Alexander Grantham to replace Young, whom it worried was too closely associated with the surrender to the Japanese.
Unlike Young, Grantham, who had been in Hong Kong as a cadet during the strike-boycott of 1925–1926, believed that the colony’s proximity to China meant that local Chinese could never be molded into loyal British subjects.
Grantham agreed that the Legislative Council could be made slightly more representative, but he doubted that Hong Kong could ever have the kind of system that had developed during his governorship in Jamaica, Nigeria, and Fiji.
“Hong Kong is different from other colonies,” he later wrote, “for Hong Kong can never become independent.

Either it remains a British colony, or it is re-absorbed into China as part of the province of Kwangtung [Guangdong].” 13 Nor, Grantham insisted, were Young’s reforms even necessary.
Grantham, who enjoyed good relations with the British and Chinese merchants of Hong Kong as well as with prominent military and political officials in China, believed that the majority of Hong Kong Chinese preferred British rule and that the British could prevent the Nationalists from trying to recover Hong Kong.
He was less optimistic that the British could do the same if the Communists took control of China, but he felt certain that the Communists would not bother Hong Kong as long as they were convinced of the colony’s value to them.

尽管英国政府在 1947 年 7 月公开原则上批准了杨氏改革方案，但这些改革从一开始就注定失败。英国政府很快派遣亚历山大·格兰瑟姆接替杨氏，因为他们担心杨氏与向日本投降的关系过于密切。与杨氏不同，格兰瑟姆曾在 1925-1926 年的罢工抵制运动期间以学员身份在香港待过，他认为香港与中国大陆的地理位置意味着当地华人永远无法被塑造成忠诚的英国臣民。格兰瑟姆同意立法会可以略微提高代表性，但他怀疑香港是否能够建立起像他在牙买加、尼日利亚和斐济担任总督期间所建立的那种制度。“香港与其他殖民地不同，”他后来写道，“因为香港永远不可能独立。它要么继续作为英国殖民地，要么作为广东省的一部分重新并入中国。” 13 格兰瑟姆还坚持认为，杨氏的改革根本没有必要。格兰瑟姆与香港的英国和中国商人以及中国的一些重要军政官员都保持着良好的关系。他认为，大多数香港华人更倾向于英国的统治，而且英国能够阻止国民党试图收复香港。如果共产党控制了中国，他不太乐观英国能否做到这一点，但他确信，只要共产党确信香港对他们有价值，他们就不会干涉香港事务。

The failure of the Young plan cannot, however, be blamed solely on Grantham. Although the new governor was greatly responsible for killing the reforms, they were also hurt by a lack of support from the British government and from Hong Kong’s Chinese and expatriate (a.n.)（人）旅居国外的；被流放国外的 business communities /as well as by the changing (a.) political situation in China.

While the Colonial Office generally supported Young’s plan, the Foreign Office worried that /introducing democracy would provoke (v.)激起，引起 the Chinese government (whether Nationalist or Communist), as would any plans (n.) to keep Hong Kong in the British Empire and Commonwealth.

尽管殖民部总体上支持杨的计划，但外交部担心引入民主会激怒中国政府（无论是国民党政府还是共产党政府），任何将香港保留在大英帝国和英联邦内的计划也会如此。

Some Hong Kong officials saw the reforms as a threat to their executive authority 行政权力.

Both British and Chinese civil servants and business leaders were afraid that /the reforms would enable (v.) Chiang Kai-shek’s Nationalists to influence local municipal 城市的，市政的 politics.

The influx of refugees during the civil war 谓 also hurt (v.) the plans, because these refugees were more concerned about their immediate 立刻的，即时的；目前的，紧迫的 livelihood 生计，营生 than about constitutional reform.

Eager (a.) to escape (v.) Communist rule, 主 the wave of Chinese refugees who came after the 1949 revolution 谓 had (v.) even fewer grudges (n.)怨恨；积怨 against the colonial government.

渴望摆脱共产主义统治的 1949年革命后到来的那一波中国难民，对殖民政府的怨恨甚至更少。

Example 5. 案例

The failure of the Young plan cannot, however, be blamed solely on Grantham.
Although the new governor was greatly responsible for killing the reforms, they were also hurt by a lack of support from the British government and from Hong Kong’s Chinese and expatriate business communities as well as by the changing political situation in China.
While the Colonial Office generally supported Young’s plan, the Foreign Office worried that introducing democracy would provoke the Chinese government (whether Nationalist or Communist), as would any plans to keep Hong Kong in the British Empire and Commonwealth.
Some Hong Kong officials saw the reforms as a threat to their executive authority.
Both British and Chinese civil servants and business leaders were afraid that the reforms would enable Chiang Kai-shek’s Nationalists to influence local municipal politics.
The influx of refugees during the civil war also hurt the plans, because these refugees were more concerned about their immediate livelihood than about constitutional reform.
Eager to escape Communist rule, the wave of Chinese refugees who came after the 1949 revolution had even fewer grudges against the colonial government.

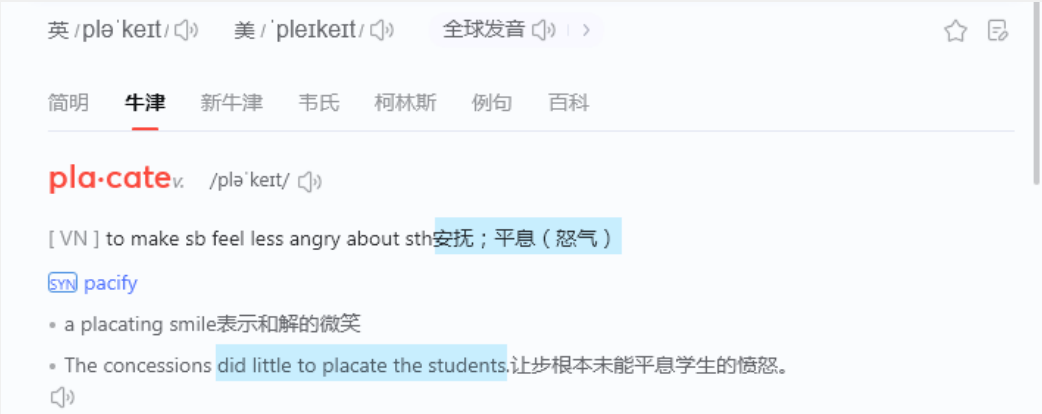
然而，杨氏改革计划的失败不能完全归咎于格兰瑟姆。尽管这位新任总督对改革的失败负有主要责任，但英国政府、香港华人及外籍商界人士缺乏支持，以及中国政治局势的变化，也对改革造成了不利影响。殖民地事务部总体上支持杨氏的计划，但外交部担心，引入民主制度会激怒中国政府（无论是国民党还是共产党），任何将香港留在英联邦的计划也会如此。一些香港官员将改革视为对其行政权力的威胁。英国和中国的公务员及商界领袖都担心，改革会使蒋介石的国民党能够影响地方政治。内战期间涌入的难民也对改革计划造成了阻碍，因为这些难民更关心的是眼前的生计，而不是宪政改革。1949年革命后涌入的中国难民急于逃离共产党的统治，他们对殖民地政府的怨恨甚至更少。

主 The British government’s earlier concerns 后定说明 about placating (v.)安抚，抚慰 any demands for reform in Hong Kong 谓 soon subsided (v.)减弱；平息；（地面或建筑）下沉；（水）回落.

英国政府早些时候对"安抚香港任何改革诉求"的担忧, 很快就消退了。

Example 6. 案例
placate

→ 来自拉丁语placate,安抚，取悦，来自PIE*plak,平的，来自PIE*pele,放平，展开，词源同please,place.词义由放平引申为放低身段，安抚等。



In December 1948 and again in August 1949, the Labour government, which earlier had declared (v.)公布，宣告；声称 its commitment to decolonizing (v.)（使）非殖民地化 the British Empire, affirmed (v.)断言,肯定 its intention 意图，目的 to keep Hong Kong.

After the Communist victory in 1949 /and China's subsequent entry into the Korean War in 1950, however, the Foreign Office feared that /political reforms would provoke 激怒；挑衅；激起 China (as 主 a similar proposal 提议；建议 for reform in Gibraltar 直布罗陀 谓 had provoked Spain).

Example 7. 案例

The British government's earlier concerns about placating any demands for reform in Hong Kong soon subsided.
In December 1948 and again in August 1949, the Labour government, which earlier had declared its commitment to decolonizing the British Empire, affirmed its intention to keep Hong Kong.
In June 1949 the predominantly expatriate Hong Kong Reform Club and Kowloon Chamber of Commerce petitioned Grantham for a directly elected Legislative Council, and in July almost 150 Chinese groups, including the Chinese Manufacturers' Union, the Hong Kong Chinese Reform Association, and the Kowloon Chinese Chamber of Commerce, petitioned Grantham for constitutional reforms at the central and municipal levels.
After the Communist victory in 1949 and China's subsequent entry into the Korean War in 1950, however, the Foreign Office feared that political reforms would provoke China (as a similar proposal for reform in Gibraltar had provoked Spain).

英国政府早先对安抚香港任何改革诉求的担忧很快消散。1948年12月和1949年8月，此前曾宣布致力于英国殖民帝国非殖民化的工党政府重申了保留香港的意图。1949年6月，主要由外籍人士组成的香港改革俱乐部和九龙商会向格兰瑟姆请愿，要求设立直选立法会；同年7月，包括中国制造业联合会、香港华人改革协会和九龙中华商会在内的近150个华人团体向格兰瑟姆请愿，要求在中央和地方层面进行宪政改革。然而，在1949年共产党取得胜利以及中国随后于1950年卷入朝鲜战争之后，英国外交部担心政治改革会激怒中国（正如在直布罗陀提出的类似改革方案激怒了西班牙一样）。

The Foreign Office approved Grantham's less radical 激进的 reforms in May 1952, but unofficial members of the legislative and executive councils suddenly opposed 反对 any reforms.

Four months later, the British cabinet 内阁 agreed to scrap (v.)（因不切实际而）放弃，抛弃（计划、体系）；废弃 plans for constitutional reform in Hong Kong.

In October, Secretary for the Colonies 殖民地大臣 Oliver Lyttelton told the House of Commons 英国下议院 that /any constitutional reforms would be confined to the Urban Council 城市委员会 and that any significant reform would be “inopportune (a.)不合时宜的；不适当的.”

Example 9. 案例

opportune

→ 这个词和opportunity（机会）同源，来自拉丁语中的一个航海术语。前缀op表“to，toward，朝向”，词根port在这里是“港口”，指海上航行时海风正好刮向港口，即是顺风，引申为“恰好的”；把握住机会后也能顺风顺水，所以也引申出“机会”之义。

Urban Council

► DeepSeek:

Urban Council 是香港历史上一个非常重要的市政机构，中文全称为 "市政局"（简称 "市议会" 或市政局）。它在不同时期扮演了不同的角色，但总体上是一个拥有一定自治权和执行权的法定机构，主要负责香港市区的环境卫生、文康娱乐等市政服务。

1.历史与性质

- 成立：1936年正式成立，其前身可追溯至1883年成立的“卫生局”。
- 性质：它是香港第一个、在很长一段时间内也是唯一一个拥有"民选议席"的官方机构，被看作是香港本地民主的萌芽和象征。
- 终结：因种种原因（包括与回归后特区政府架构的整合问题），市政局及其负责新界区的对应机构“区域市政局”在1999年12月31日被解散，其职能被并入新成立的食物环境卫生署和康乐及文化事务署。

2.职责与权力（“实权”分析）

市政局的权力是有限的，主要集中在“市政”范畴，而非全面的政治权力。

主要职责包括：

- 公共卫生：街市（菜市场）管理、小贩管理、垃圾收集、清洁服务、殡葬服务。
- 环境卫生：食品卫生监管、餐馆发牌与检查。
- 文娱康乐：管理全港的公共图书馆、博物馆（如香港艺术馆、香港博物馆）、体育场馆、公园、游泳池，以及举办文化娱乐活动。

“实权”评估：

- 是：在其负责的市政服务领域，它拥有实质的行政权、财政权（有独立预算）和决策权。它可以制定相关政策、签发牌照、管理设施、举办活动，是一个“看得见、摸得着”的办事机构，与市民日常生活息息相关。
- 不是：它的权力完全不涉及政治、国防、外交、司法、治安、重大经济政策、城市规划、土地、教育、社会福利等核心管治领域。这些权力牢牢掌握在港督及其领导下的香港政府（即殖民地官僚体系）手中。

原文提到，英国殖民部大臣表示宪政改革只局限于"市政局"，表明：英国政府只愿意在最不涉及政治核心的、技术性的市政层面，进行有限的民主化尝试（如增加市政局的民选议席）。本地华人精英的参与被严格限制在生活服务层面，无法触及统治根本。

Robert Black, who succeeded 接替；继任 Grantham as governor in 1958, was also convinced 确信；信服 that any political reforms would provoke China.

Although historian Steve Tsang has found that /主 none of the declassified 解密的；公开的 British documents for the 1950s and 1960s 谓 indicate 表明；显示 that leaders of the People’s Republic of China (PRC) ever warned (v.) the Hong Kong government against any political reforms, British officials frequently used (v.) the argument 论点；理由 that any democratic 民主的 reforms would not be tolerated by China to justify (v.)证明…合理；为…辩护 Hong Kong’s lack of democratization 民主化.

Thus, writes (v.) Leo Goodstadt, who has spent several decades 十年 working in and writing on Hong Kong, “主 an expatriate 移居国外的；侨民的 colonial administration 政府；管理机构, in collusion 勾结；串通 with a largely Chinese business elite, 谓 frustrated (v.)挫败；阻止 the modest 适度的；温和的 reforms 后定说明 proposed for the territory 地

区；领土 /and ensured the survival (n.)延续；存在；生存 of colonial political institutions 后定说明 inherited 继承；承袭 from the previous century."

因此，在香港工作和撰写相关内容数十年的利奥·古斯塔特写道："一个外籍殖民政府与主要由华人组成的商业精英阶层相互勾结，阻挠了为该地区提出的温和改革，并确保了从上世纪继承下来的殖民政治机构, 得以存续。"

Example 10. 案例

The Foreign Office approved Grantham's less radical reforms in May 1952, but unofficial members of the legislative and executive councils suddenly opposed any reforms. Four months later, the British cabinet agreed to scrap plans for constitutional reform in Hong Kong.
In October, Secretary for the Colonies Oliver Lyttelton told the House of Commons that any constitutional reforms would be confined to the Urban Council and that any significant reform would be "inopportune." Robert Black, who succeeded Grantham as governor in 1958, was also convinced that any political reforms would provoke China. Although historian Steve Tsang has found that none of the declassified British documents for the 1950s and 1960s indicate that leaders of the People's Republic of China (PRC) ever warned the Hong Kong government against any political reforms, British officials frequently used the argument that any democratic reforms would not be tolerated by China to justify Hong Kong's lack of democratization.14 Thus, writes Leo Goodstadt, who has spent several decades working in and writing on Hong Kong, "an expatriate colonial administration, in collusion with a largely Chinese business elite, frustrated the modest reforms proposed for the territory and ensured the survival of colonial political institutions inherited from the previous century." 15

1952 年 5 月，英国外交部批准了格兰瑟姆较为温和的改革方案，但立法会和行政会的非正式成员突然反对任何改革。四个月后，英国政府同意放弃香港宪政改革计划。同年 10 月，殖民地事务大臣利特尔顿在下议院表示，任何宪政改革都将仅限于市政委员会，任何重大改革都"不合时宜"。1958 年接替格兰瑟姆出任香港总督的罗伯特·布莱克也坚信，任何政治改革都会激怒中国。尽管历史学家曾志伟发现，在 20 世纪 50 年代和 60 年代解密的英国文件中，没有任何证据表明中华人民共和国领导人曾警告香港政府不要进行任何政治改革，但英国官员经常以中国不会容忍任何民主改革为由，为香港缺乏民主化进程辩护。 14 因此，正如在香港工作和写作数十年的利奥·古德斯塔特所写，"一个外籍殖民政府与主要由华人组成的商业精英勾结，阻挠了为香港提出的温和改革方案，并确保了从上个世纪继承而来的殖民政治制度的延续。" 15

The early postwar years nevertheless 然而，不过 saw (v.) some important changes.

Ironically 具有讽刺意味的是, 主 part of the impulse 冲动；推动力 for these changes 谓 came from the Japanese, 主 who in their wartime propaganda 谓 had drawn unflattering (a.) 不讨好的；令人尴尬的 attention to Hong Kong's problems, most prominently 显著地；突出地 its racial discrimination 种族歧视 and legalized 合法化的 opium smoking.

"The conquest of December 1941," writes Snow, "had given the old colonial rulers a sort of enforced 被迫的；强制的 sabbatical 休假；休整期 in which to sit back 休息,袖手旁观 and take stock of （对某情况）加以总结，作出评估，进行反思 their pre-war deficiencies 不足；缺陷."

斯诺写道："1941年12月的沦陷，给了这些老牌殖民统治者一段被迫的休假期，让他们得以静下来反思战前的种种不足。"

Example 11. 案例
take 'stock (of sth)

to stop and think carefully about the way in which a particular situation is developing in order to decide what to do next（对某情况）加以总结，作出评估，进行反思

Take stock 的字面意思就是“清点存货”。“盘点存货”这个行为本身就包含了一套认知过程: 评估销售情况（畅销/滞销）,为下一步订货做决策.

于是，“take stock of + 抽象事物”的意思就清晰了：

- take stock of the situation = 盘点一下现状（就像盘点库存一样，全面、冷静地审视当前情况）。
- take stock of one’s life = 盘点一下自己的人生（回顾过往，评估得失，思考未来方向）。
- take stock of the company’s performance = 对公司的表现进行评估（像看财务报表一样，分析各项成绩和问题）。

While some of the old colonials 殖民者 did not necessarily share (v.)共同拥有（看法、特质或经历） what became known as “the 1946 outlook 观点；看法,” both British government officials and local colonial administrators 行政官员；管理者 realized that /Hong Kong needed (v.) at least minor constitutional changes /and that the colony could not return to the prewar days of racial discrimination.

尽管一些旧殖民主义者, 未必认同后来被称为“1946年观点”的理念，但英国政府官员和当地殖民管理者都意识到，香港至少需要进行一些微小的宪法改革，而且该殖民地不能回到战前那种"种族歧视"的时代。

Some of these sentiments 情绪；观点 came from administrators who, like MacDougall and Young, saw British colonialism as an important step toward self-rule 自治；自主.

The impulse for change 谓 also had a strong pragmatic 务实的；讲求实际的 basis: the British realized that /they needed to win over 争取；说服 the local Chinese to legitimize (v.)使合法化；使正当化 and maintain (v.) their continued rule in Hong Kong.

Example 12. 案例

The early postwar years nevertheless saw some important changes.
Ironically, part of the impulse for these changes came from the Japanese, who in their wartime propaganda had drawn unflattering attention to Hong Kong’s problems, most prominently its racial discrimination and legalized opium smoking.
“The conquest of December 1941,” writes Snow, “had given the old colonial rulers a sort of enforced sabbatical in which to sit back and take stock of their pre-war deficiencies.”16 While some of the old colonials did not necessarily share what became known as “the 1946 outlook,” both British government officials and local colonial administrators realized that Hong Kong needed at least minor constitutional changes and that the colony could not return to the prewar days of racial discrimination.
Some of these sentiments came from administrators who, like MacDougall and Young, saw British colonialism as an important step toward self-rule.
The impulse for change also had a strong pragmatic basis: the British realized that they needed to win over the local Chinese to legitimize and maintain their continued rule in Hong Kong.

尽管如此，战后初期还是出现了一些重要的变化。具有讽刺意味的是，这些变化的部分推动力来自日本人。他们在战时宣传中对香港的问题进行了毫不留情的抨击，其中最突出的是种族歧视和鸦片合法化。斯诺写道：“1941 年 12 月的征服给了昔日的殖民统治者一段被迫的休整期，让他们得以反思战前的种种不足。” 16 虽然一些昔日的殖民者未必认同后来被称为“1946 年展望”的观点，

但英国政府官员和当地殖民地官员都意识到，香港至少需要进行一些小的宪政改革，而且殖民地不能再回到战前种族歧视的时代。其中一些观点来自像麦克杜格尔和杨这样的官员，他们将英国的殖民统治视为迈向自治的重要一步。变革的动力也源于强烈的务实考量：英国人意识到，他们需要赢得当地华人的支持，才能使其在香港的统治合法化并维持下去。

In late July 1946, shortly after Young’s return, the colonial government repealed 废除；撤销；废止 the 1904 and 1918 Peak ordinances 法令；条例 as well as the ordinance that had reserved for Europeans.
Soon wealthy Chinese were moving to the Peak.

Racial discrimination was suddenly seen as being out of step with 与他人的想法或信仰不一致;与…不同步；与…不协调 the times.

Grantham observed (v.) a “marked 明显的；显著的；有记号的 decline in social snobbishness 势利；势利眼” and a “greater mixing of the races” compared to 与（某事物）相比 when he had been in Hong Kong during the 1920s and 1930s.

格兰瑟姆观察到，与他在 20 世纪 20 年代和 30 年代在香港时相比，这里出现了 “社会’势利现象’的显著减少” 和 “更广泛的种族融合”。

The government also banned (v.) opium smoking and tripled (v.)使成三倍；增至三倍 the minimum daily wage.

The Executive Council was expanded (v.) to include an equal number of Chinese and European unofficial members.

Example 13. 案例

In late July 1946, shortly after Young’s return, the colonial government repealed the 1904 and 1918 Peak ordinances as well as the ordinance that had reserved part of the island of Cheung Chau for Europeans.
Soon wealthy Chinese were moving to the Peak.
Racial discrimination was suddenly seen as being out of step with the times.
Grantham observed a “marked decline in social snobbishness” and a “greater mixing of the races” compared to when he had been in Hong Kong during the 1920s and 1930s.17
Whereas visitors from other colonies before the war had frequently commented on the width of the racial divide in Hong Kong, visitors after the war were often surprised to see both Chinese and foreigners using buses and trams.
In October, Paul Tsui, the University of Hong Kong graduate who had worked for the BAAG during the war, became the first Chinese cadet officer.

The government also banned opium smoking and tripled the minimum daily wage.
The Executive Council was expanded to include an equal number of Chinese and European unofficial members.

1946 年 7 月下旬，杨荣文回国后不久，殖民地政府废除了 1904 年和 1918 年的山顶法令，以及将长洲岛部分地区划为欧洲人居住地的法令。很快，富裕的华人开始迁往山顶。种族歧视突然被视为与时代格格不入。格兰瑟姆观察到，与他 20 世纪 20 年代和 30 年代在香港时相比，“社会势利眼现象显著减少”，“种族融合程度更高”。 17 战前，来自其他殖民地的游客经常评论香港种族隔离的严重程度，而战后，游客常常惊讶地发现华人和外国人都在乘坐公共汽车和电车。10 月，曾在战时为英国陆军总参谋部工作的香港大学毕业生徐保罗成为首位华人学员军官。政府还禁止吸食鸦片，并将最低日工资提高到原来的三倍。执行委员会扩大了成员规模，中国和欧洲的非正式成员人数相等。

Yet the magnitude (n.)巨大；重要性；量级 of these changes 谓 should not be exaggerated 夸大；夸张.
Many elite clubs remained (v.) closed to Chinese and Europeans /until the late 1950s.

The plans for localization 地方化；本土化 made little headway 进展；进步.
Instead, government positions were filled with “retreads 翻新的旧轮胎,” 同位 expatriate (a.) (人) 旅居国外的 colonial officers 后定说明 brought in from other British colonies.

相反，政府职位都由 “熟手” —— 也就是从其他英国殖民地调来的外派殖民官员 —— 来担任。

Example 14. 案例
retread

→ re-,再，重新，tread,踩踏，鞋面，轮胎胎面。引申词义翻新，翻版。
来自古英语 tredan,踩踏，来自 PIE*tred,踩踏，来自 PIE*der,走，跑，步行，词源同 trade (贸易，买卖) ,tramp(流浪汉，流浪乞丐；沉重的脚步声). 后用于指轮胎胎面，常见于复合词 retread,翻修，翻新。

IDIOMS 习语

Many colonial officials had always doubted (v.) the loyalty of the Hong Kong Chinese, but these doubts intensified 增强；加剧；强化 after the Chinese revolution of 1949, when, writes (v.) Goodstadt, “Chinese were viewed as more susceptible 易受影响的；敏感的 to ideological 思想的；意识形态的 conversion 转变；改变信仰；皈依 than the English (despite the Soviet spy scandals in the British Foreign Office).”

As Chinese refugees flooded (v.) in while the civil war escalated 逐步升级；加剧；恶化, the local demands for reform subsided 减弱；平息；消退.

Thus, the British could afford 承担得起（后果） to become more confident in retaining (v.) Hong Kong without making any significant changes.

因此，英国人有足够的底气在不做出任何重大改变的情况下，更有信心地保留香港。

Example 16. 案例

Yet the magnitude of these changes should not be exaggerated.
Many elite clubs remained closed to Chinese and Europeans until the late 1950s.
The most important government and commercial positions were still held by Europeans, and the expatriate-dominated Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce did not get a Chinese chair until the 1980s.
The plans for localization made little headway.
Instead, government positions were filled with "retreads," expatriate colonial officers brought in from other British colonies.
Although many of these new officers were more liberal than the old colonials, the temporary solidarity that had been forged during the war slipped away.
Expatriate officials enjoyed higher wages and better terms of employment and promotion as well as superior housing and medical care.
Many colonial officials had always doubted the loyalty of the Hong Kong Chinese, but these doubts intensified after the Chinese revolution of 1949, when, writes Goodstadt, "Chinese were viewed as more susceptible to ideological conversion than the English (despite the Soviet spy scandals in the British Foreign Office)." 18 As Chinese refugees flooded in while the civil war escalated, the local demands for reform subsided.
Thus, the British could afford to become more confident in retaining Hong Kong without making any significant changes.

然而，这些变化的程度不应被夸大。许多精英俱乐部直到 20 世纪 50 年代末才对华人和欧洲人开放。最重要的政府和商业职位仍然由欧洲人把持，而由外籍人士主导的香港总商会直到 20 世纪 80 年代才设立华人主席。本土化计划进展甚微。相反，政府职位被大量"老兵"填补，这些"老兵"是从其他英国殖民地调来的外籍殖民官员。尽管许多新官员比老殖民者更加开明，但战争期间建立的临时团结却逐渐消逝。外籍官员享有更高的工资、更好的工作和晋升条件，以及更优越的住房和医疗条件。许多殖民官员一直怀疑香港华人的忠诚度，但这种怀疑在 1949 年中国革命后加剧。正如古德斯塔特所写，"华人被认为比英国人更容易接受意识形态转变（尽管英国外交部曾爆出苏联间谍丑闻）。" 18 随着内战升级，大量中国难民涌入，当地民众对改革的呼声逐渐减弱。因此，英国人得以更加自信地维持对香港的控制，而无需做出任何重大改变。

In the end, the greatest significance 意义；重要性 of World War II for Hong Kong was probably economic rather than social or political.

On the one hand 一方面, the British never regained their prewar hold (n.)影响，控制 on Hong Kong's economy.
It was the Chinese who, for example, literally 按照字面意义地，真正地；确实地 rebuilt (v.) Hong Kong: in 1946 主 all of the contractors 承包商；承建商 后定说明 used by the Public Works Department 公共工程部门 to rebuild the colony 系 were Chinese.

It was also the Chinese who rebuilt the light-industry 轻工业的 base 后定说明 they had established before the war.

From 1947 to 1949, almost all major firms in Shanghai moved (v.) their operations to Hong Kong, which gave the colony larger and more sophisticated 精密的；复杂的；先进的 factories.

Together, 主 local industrialists 工业家；实业家 and these "emigrant 移民的 entrepreneurs 企业家"，as sociologist 社会学家 Wong Siu-lun calls (v.) them, 谓 built (v.) on Hong Kong's earlier industrial base, which had been established in the early 1900s

/and expanded in the late 1930s when Chinese industrialists had moved to Hong Kong after the Japanese invasion of China.

正如社会学家 Wong Siu-lun 所称呼的那样，当地实业家与这些来自上海的“移民企业家”一道，在香港早期的工业基础上继续发展。香港的这一工业基础始建于20世纪初，并在20世纪30年代后期得到扩展——当时由于日本侵华，中国实业家纷纷迁往香港。

Example 17. 案例

In the end, the greatest significance of World War II for Hong Kong was probably economic rather than social or political.
On the one hand, the British never regained their prewar hold on Hong Kong’s economy. It was the Chinese who, for example, literally rebuilt Hong Kong: in 1946 all of the contractors used by the Public Works Department to rebuild the colony were Chinese.
It was also the Chinese who rebuilt the light-industry base they had established before the war.
From 1947 to 1949, almost all major firms in Shanghai moved their operations to Hong Kong, which gave the colony larger and more sophisticated factories.
Together, local industrialists and these “emigrant entrepreneurs” from Shanghai, as sociologist Wong Siu-lun calls them, built on Hong Kong’s earlier industrial base, which had been established in the early 1900s and expanded in the late 1930s when Chinese industrialists had moved to Hong Kong after the Japanese invasion of China.19

最终，二战对香港最大的影响或许在于经济层面，而非社会或政治层面。一方面，英国再也无法恢复战前对香港经济的控制。例如，正是中国人重建了香港：1946 年，公共工程署所有负责重建香港的承包商都是中国人。同样，也是中国人重建了他们在战前建立的轻工业基地。1947 年至 1949 年间，上海几乎所有大型企业都将业务迁至香港，这使得香港拥有了规模更大、技术更先进的工厂。正如社会学家黄兆伦所言，本地实业家和这些来自上海的“移民企业家”共同巩固了香港早期的工业基础。香港的工业基础建立于 20 世纪初，并在 20 世纪 30 年代末日本侵华后，随着中国实业家迁往香港而得到扩展。

On the other hand 另一方面, whereas 然而；尽管 some British leaders had doubted (v.) Hong Kong’s economic value, the war helped make Hong Kong an even more important part of the shrinking 收缩的；缩小的 British Empire.

Because 主 the abolition 废除；取消 of the foreign concessions 租界 in China following the war 战后 谓 threatened (v.) the economic security 安全,保护措施 后定说明 that foreigners had enjoyed for so long, many foreign firms soon moved (v.) their headquarters 总部 from China to Hong Kong.

Hong Kong thus became 表 of greater strategic importance than before /as 作为 the center of British commercial operations (n.)运营；运作；业务操作 in China.

因此，作为英国在华商业运营中心，香港变得比以往更具战略重要性。

Example 18. 案例

Header 1	Header 2
Hong Kong thus became of greater strategic importance than before...	became of + 抽象名词：这是一个固定结构，相当于 became + 形容词。 became of importance= became important。
状语成分：...as the center of British commercial operations in China.	...作为（英国商业活动的中心，该商业活动是在中国的）。

Header 1	Header 2
	• -这里的 as 意思是“作为”，表示身份、角色或功能。 • commercial operations 译为 “商业活动” 或 “商业经营” 。operations这里指一系列的贸易、金融、物流等商业行为，是一个集合概念。

With 在...情况下,背景下 an insurgency 叛乱；暴动 in Malaya 后定说明 led by Chinese Communists and the impending (a.)即将发生的；逼近的 Communist victory in China, 主 holding on to 紧紧抓住,守住；不放弃 Hong Kong 谓 also became of great psychological 心理的 importance.

Example 19. 案例

became of ... importance

同上一句分析，become of + 抽象名词结构，相当于 became very important psychologically.

insurgency

(n.)an attempt to take control of a country by force 起义；叛乱；造反
SYN rebellion

→ 来源于拉丁语由in-(反对)和surgere(上升)组成的复合词insurgere。 词根词缀： in-反对 + sur-上,超过 + g(-reg-)统治 + -ency名词词尾

Losing the colony would hurt (v.) British prestige 声望；威望 and undermine (v.)削弱；损害 the struggle against Communism in Thailand, Burma 缅甸, and Malaya.

Example 20. 案例

Burma

与其中文意思"缅甸"的发音, 似乎没有相似性?

► DeepSeek:

源自该国主体民族“缅族”的自称。缅族人称自己为 Bamar（巴玛），他们的语言是 Bama-sa（巴玛语）。英语中的 Burma便是对这个自称“Bamar”的音译和英语化。

- Burma：传统名称，强调缅族主体。1989年前是官方英文名。
- Myanmar：1989年，缅甸军政府更改的官方英文名，源自古代梵文名称 Myanma，意在更具历史包容性（理论上涵盖国内所有民族）。但此更改在国际上存在争议，许多缅语民主人士和西方国家在非正式场合仍坚持使用 Burma。联合国等国际组织承认 Myanmar。

This strategic usefulness 有用；有效性；有益 was enhanced by the fact that the cost of retaining Hong Kong was extremely low.

保留香港的成本极低，这一事实增强了其战略价值。

After 1948, Hong Kong did not require any financial assistance from Britain, although Britain continued to pay for most of the local garrison 驻军；卫戍部队.

Example 21. 案例

On the other hand, whereas some British leaders had doubted Hong Kong’s economic value, the war helped make Hong Kong an even more important part of the shrinking British Empire.
Because the abolition of the foreign concessions in China following the war threatened the economic security that foreigners had enjoyed for so long, many foreign firms soon moved their headquarters from China to Hong Kong.
Hong Kong thus became of greater strategic importance than before as the center of British commercial operations in China.
With an insurgency in Malaya led by Chinese Communists and the impending Communist victory in China, holding on to Hong Kong also became of great psychological importance.
Losing the colony would hurt British prestige and undermine the struggle against Communism in Thailand, Burma, and Malaya.
This strategic usefulness was enhanced by the fact that the cost of retaining Hong Kong was extremely low.
After 1948, Hong Kong did not require any financial assistance from Britain, although Britain continued to pay for most of the local garrison.

另一方面，尽管一些英国领导人曾对香港的经济价值持怀疑态度，但战争却使香港在日渐萎缩的大英帝国中扮演了更为重要的角色。由于战后中国取消外国租界威胁到外国人长期以来享有的经济安全，许多外国公司很快将总部从中国大陆迁至香港。因此，香港作为英国在华商业活动的中心，其战略重要性比以往任何时候都更加凸显。随着中国共产党在马来亚发动叛乱，以及共产党即将在中国取得胜利，守住香港也具有重要的心理意义。失去这片殖民地将损害英国的威望，并削弱其在泰国、缅甸和马来亚的反共斗争。而维持香港统治的成本极低，更凸显了香港的战略价值。1948年后，香港不再需要英国的任何财政援助，尽管英国仍然承担着大部分驻港部队的费用。
